

Early Literacy Tip from the Lincoln County Public Library

When you read with your children, from time to time hold the book upside down or backward. See if they notice that it is upside down. If not, point it out. Children need to know how to hold a book, which part is the cover, and which part is the back of the book. This is one way to find out if they know this; this is a part of being ready to read.

I can turn into a puppet with a popsicle stick and some glue.

Early Literacy Tip from the
Lincoln County Public Library

When you read with your children, from time to time hold the book upside down or backward. See if they notice that it is upside down. If not, point it out. Children need to know how to hold a book, which part is the cover, and which part is the back of the book. This is one way to find out if they know this; this is a part of being ready to read.

I can turn into a puppet with a popsicle stick and some glue.